

This map illustrates the distribution of the elderly population across the United States in 2019. The color gradient indicates the percentage of residents aged 65 and older, with darker red representing higher percentages and darker purple representing lower percentages. High concentrations are visible in the Southeast, particularly in Florida and the Carolinas, while lower concentrations are found in the West and parts of the Midwest.

